Initial Consultation

The first session often involves an initial consultation where the counselor gathers information about the client's background, current challenges, and goals for counseling. This session sets the foundation for the therapeutic relationship.

Assessment and Goal Setting

Following the initial consultation, the counselor conducts a more thorough assessment to identify specific issues and set achievable goals. This collaborative process helps clients clarify their objectives for therapy.

Therapeutic Sessions

During subsequent sessions, clients engage in discussions and exercises based on the therapeutic approach being used. Counselors employ various techniques tailored to the client's needs, facilitating exploration and insight.

Evaluation and Progress Monitoring

As therapy progresses, counselors regularly evaluate the client's progress towards their goals. Adjustments to the therapeutic approach may be made as needed to ensure the client is receiving the most effective care.

Closure

When clients have achieved their goals or feel ready to conclude counseling, the counselor facilitates a closure session. This allows clients to reflect on their journey and celebrate their growth.
