Celebrating Our Educators: A Letter to Parents About Teacher Appreciation Week

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week is more than just an announcement; it's an invitation to acknowledge and celebrate the incredible individuals who dedicate their lives to shaping young minds. As Teacher Appreciation Week approaches, it's crucial for parents to understand the significance of this event and how they can actively participate in showing gratitude to their children's teachers. This comprehensive guide delves into the importance of recognizing educators, offers practical ideas for expressing thanks, and emphasizes the profound impact a supportive parent community can have on school morale and student success. We'll explore the various ways to make Teacher Appreciation Week a memorable occasion for our dedicated teachers.

Understanding the Importance of Teacher Appreciation Week

Why Teacher Appreciation Week Matters So Much

Teacher Appreciation Week is a designated time to recognize the invaluable contributions of educators to our society. Teachers play a pivotal role in nurturing, educating, and inspiring the next generation. They are not just instructors; they are mentors, guides, and often, a source of unwavering support for students. This special week provides a formal opportunity for communities, parents, and students to express their heartfelt gratitude for the tireless efforts, dedication, and passion that teachers bring to their classrooms every single day. It's a chance to acknowledge the long hours, the creative lesson planning, the emotional labor, and the profound impact teachers have on individual lives and the broader educational landscape.

The Impact of Teacher Recognition

When teachers feel appreciated and valued, their job satisfaction and morale significantly increase. This positive environment directly translates into more effective teaching and a more engaging learning experience for students. Recognizing teachers' hard work can also encourage them to continue pursuing excellence in their profession and can help attract and retain talented educators within the school system. Acknowledging their efforts fosters a stronger sense of community between home and school, reinforcing the partnership that is essential for a child's educational journey. This collective appreciation strengthens the school's overall culture and demonstrates a shared commitment to valuing education.

Planning Your Appreciation Efforts: A Parent's Guide

Crafting a Meaningful Letter to Teachers

A handwritten letter is one of the most personal and impactful ways to express your gratitude. When writing a letter to parents about teacher appreciation week, encourage parents to be specific in their praise. Instead of general statements like "Thank you for teaching my child," suggest they mention particular instances where the teacher made a difference. Did the teacher help their child overcome a specific academic challenge? Did they foster a love for a particular subject? Did they offer encouragement during a difficult time? Including these personal anecdotes makes the appreciation feel genuine and deeply felt. Encourage parents to focus on the positive impact the teacher has had on their child's learning and personal growth. A well-crafted letter can be a cherished keepsake for any educator.

Creative Gift Ideas for Teachers

While gifts are not mandatory, thoughtful gestures can go a long way in showing appreciation. When considering gift ideas, it's helpful to think about items that teachers can genuinely use or enjoy. Many teachers appreciate practical gifts that can help them in their classrooms or personal lives. Consider suggesting a group gift from the class, which can allow for a more substantial contribution. Alternatively, a small, personalized item can be just as meaningful. Remember, the thought behind the gift is often more important than its monetary value. Encourage parents to think about the teacher's interests and personality to make the gift even more special.

- Classroom supplies (e.g., nice pens, sticky notes, organizational bins)
- Gift cards to bookstores or coffee shops
- Handmade crafts or artwork from the student
- A personalized mug or tote bag
- A donation to a favorite charity in the teacher's name

Organizing Class-Wide Appreciation Events

Collaborating as a class can amplify the impact of Teacher Appreciation Week. Parents can work together to organize special events or projects that celebrate their child's teacher. This could involve coordinating a special lunch for the teacher, decorating the classroom, or creating a collaborative "thank you" card from all students. Group efforts not only demonstrate widespread appreciation but also foster a sense of community among parents. Planning a class-wide surprise can be an exciting way to make the teacher feel truly celebrated and acknowledged by the entire class and their families. Discussing these ideas within a letter to parents about teacher appreciation week can prompt valuable input and participation.

The Role of Students in Appreciation

Encouraging Student Involvement

It's vital to involve students directly in the appreciation process. Children often have unique perspectives on how their teachers have helped them and can express their gratitude in sincere and heartfelt ways. Encourage students to participate in creating cards, drawings, or short written messages for their teachers. Discussing the importance of teachers and the purpose of Teacher Appreciation Week with children can help them understand the value of expressing gratitude. Their contributions, no matter how small, can be incredibly meaningful to an educator who works hard to support their learning and development every day.

Student-Created Gifts and Messages

Student-created gifts are often the most cherished items a teacher receives. A drawing from a young child, a poem written by an older student, or a heartfelt thank-you note filled with specific memories can be incredibly touching. These personal touches showcase the student's engagement and their genuine appreciation for their teacher's efforts. Encourage parents to guide their children in articulating their thoughts and feelings, ensuring that the messages are positive and specific to their experiences in the classroom. These personal expressions of gratitude from the students themselves are often the highlight of Teacher Appreciation Week for many educators.

Beyond Gifts: Showing Appreciation Throughout the Year

Consistent Positive Reinforcement

While Teacher Appreciation Week is a dedicated time, showing appreciation should not be limited to a single week. Encouraging parents to provide consistent positive feedback and support to their child's teachers throughout the school year is crucial. This can include sending occasional emails of praise, volunteering in the classroom when possible, or simply acknowledging the teacher's efforts during parent-teacher conferences. Building a strong, positive relationship with educators over time fosters a supportive environment for both students and teachers. Consistent recognition reinforces the value placed on education and the dedication of those who provide it.

Supporting School Initiatives

Another way parents can show appreciation is by actively supporting school initiatives and events. Participating in school fundraisers, attending board meetings, or volunteering for school committees demonstrates a commitment to the educational community as a whole. When parents are engaged and supportive of the school's goals and the efforts of its staff, it creates a more robust and effective learning environment for all students. This broader sense of partnership and commitment to the school's success is a profound form of appreciation for the teachers and administrators working tirelessly to serve the students.

The Long-Term Benefits of a Thankful Community

A community that consistently expresses gratitude towards its educators creates a positive feedback loop. Teachers who feel valued are more likely to remain in the profession, bringing their experience and passion to future generations of students. This fosters a more stable and experienced teaching staff, which directly benefits student outcomes. A thankful community also instills in children the importance of gratitude and respect for authority figures, shaping them into more considerate and appreciative individuals. The ripple effect of appreciation strengthens the entire educational ecosystem, making it a more supportive and effective place for everyone involved.

Frequently Asked Questions

What's the best way to express genuine appreciation to teachers during Teacher Appreciation Week?

Genuine appreciation goes beyond just a card. Consider a personal note detailing specific ways a teacher has impacted your child, a small gift that reflects their interests (e.g., a favorite author's book, a useful classroom supply they've mentioned needing), or organizing a group gift from several parents for a larger item. The key is thoughtfulness and sincerity.

What kind of impact can parents' appreciation have on teachers?

Parental appreciation can significantly boost a teacher's morale, motivation, and sense of validation. Knowing their hard work is recognized and valued can help combat burnout and reinforce their commitment to their profession. It also fosters a positive school community where teachers feel supported.

Are there any school-wide initiatives or themes for Teacher Appreciation Week I should be aware of?

Many schools have specific themes or organized events for Teacher Appreciation Week. Check your school's website, newsletters, or your child's teacher for details. Participating in these initiatives, if possible, can amplify the collective appreciation and ensure all teachers feel celebrated.

Besides gifts, what are other meaningful ways parents can show gratitude during Teacher Appreciation Week?

Beyond tangible gifts, offering your time and support is incredibly valuable. This could include volunteering for a classroom event, donating supplies, or even writing a letter of recommendation for a professional development opportunity if you're aware of one. Positive feedback to school administration about a teacher's effectiveness is also a powerful form of appreciation.

What are some common misconceptions parents have about Teacher Appreciation Week and expressing gratitude?

A common misconception is that appreciation needs to be grand or expensive. Teachers often value simple, heartfelt gestures more than costly gifts. Another is that only 'problem' students require extra appreciation; all teachers deserve recognition for their dedication. Finally, some parents might feel intimidated to express their thanks, but teachers are always grateful for any genuine acknowledgement of their efforts.

Letter to Parents About Teacher Appreciation Week

Introduction: The Importance of Teacher Appreciation Week

Teacher Appreciation Week is more than just a designated timeframe on the calendar; it's a vital opportunity to acknowledge and celebrate the invaluable contributions of educators. Our teachers are the architects of our children's futures, shaping young minds, fostering critical thinking, and igniting a lifelong love of learning. They invest countless hours beyond the school bell, pouring their hearts and souls into their students' success. This letter aims to emphasize the profound significance of Teacher Appreciation Week and to inspire you, as parents, to actively participate in expressing your gratitude. By understanding the impact of your involvement, we can collectively create a supportive and nurturing environment where teachers thrive and students flourish.

Chapter 1: Understanding the Significance of Teacher Appreciation

The dedication and hard work of teachers often go unseen and unacknowledged. Beyond lesson planning and grading papers, they provide emotional support, act as mentors, and navigate the complexities of individual student needs. Teacher Appreciation Week serves as a powerful reminder of the crucial role they play in society. It's a chance to reflect on their impact:

Academic Achievement: Teachers directly influence student academic performance, fostering critical thinking, problem-solving skills, and knowledge acquisition. Their dedication translates into higher test scores, improved grades, and increased opportunities for future success.

Personal Growth: Teachers nurture not just academic skills but also social-emotional development. They help students build self-esteem, develop resilience, and navigate social dynamics. A supportive teacher can have a transformative effect on a child's overall well-being.

Future Contributions: By inspiring a love of learning, teachers equip students with the tools they need to become contributing members of society. They cultivate creativity, critical thinking, and problem-solving skills—essential qualities for success in any field.

Community Impact: Teachers are integral members of the community. They often go above and beyond their classroom duties, volunteering their time and expertise to support local initiatives.

Chapter 2: Creative and Meaningful Ways to Show Appreciation

Expressing gratitude doesn't require extravagant gestures. Simple acts of kindness can profoundly impact a teacher's morale. Consider these ideas:

Handwritten Notes: A heartfelt note from a student or parent expressing appreciation for their dedication and impact is a priceless gift.

Small Gifts: A gift card to a local coffee shop, bookstore, or restaurant shows thoughtfulness and provides a small treat.

Class-wide Contributions: Organize a class-wide gift, such as a plant, a personalized item, or a basket filled with classroom supplies.

Volunteer Your Time: Offer to help with classroom tasks, such as organizing materials or assisting with projects.

Positive Feedback: Share positive feedback with the teacher, school administration, or school board about your child's experience in their class.

Chapter 3: Involving Children in Teacher Appreciation Activities

Children can participate in expressing their gratitude in age-appropriate ways. This enhances their understanding of appreciation and fosters a positive teacher-student relationship. Activities could include:

Creating Handmade Cards: Encourage children to design and create cards expressing their appreciation for their teachers.

Making Small Gifts: Children can participate in making small gifts, such as decorated bookmarks or personalized pencils.

Writing Poems or Stories: Students can express their appreciation through creative writing.

Preparing a Class Presentation: The class can collaboratively prepare a short presentation expressing their gratitude.

Chapter 4: Beyond the Week: Maintaining Appreciation Throughout the Year

Teacher Appreciation shouldn't be confined to a single week. Consistent support and acknowledgement throughout the year build a stronger teacher-parent-student relationship and foster a positive learning environment. Consider:

Regular Communication: Maintain open communication with the teacher throughout the year, sharing updates and concerns.

Occasional Small Gestures: Unexpected small gestures of appreciation, such as a handwritten note or a small treat, show ongoing support.

Supporting School Initiatives: Participate in school events and support initiatives that benefit teachers and students.

Chapter 5: The Impact of Parental Involvement on Teacher Morale and Student Success

Parental involvement plays a crucial role in both teacher morale and student success. When parents actively participate in supporting their children's education, they create a collaborative learning environment that benefits everyone:

Improved Communication: Open communication between parents and teachers helps identify and address student challenges promptly.

Enhanced Student Performance: Consistent parental support at home reinforces classroom learning and improves student engagement.

Stronger Teacher Morale: Knowing that parents value their efforts boosts teacher morale and encourages dedication.

Chapter 6: Addressing Teacher Burnout and Supporting Wellbeing

Teacher burnout is a significant concern, impacting teacher effectiveness and student well-being. By understanding the factors contributing to burnout and offering support, we can create a more sustainable and supportive environment. Signs of burnout may include:

Emotional Exhaustion: Feeling overwhelmed, depleted, and emotionally drained.

Depersonalization: Developing a cynical or detached attitude towards students and work.

Reduced Personal Accomplishment: Feeling a sense of ineffectiveness and lack of accomplishment.

Parents can contribute to alleviating teacher burnout by:

Showing Appreciation: Consistent expressions of gratitude can significantly boost morale.

Respecting Their Time: Being mindful of teachers' workloads and avoiding unnecessary demands.

Offering Support: Offering assistance with classroom tasks or school events.

Conclusion: A Collective Commitment to Teacher Support

Teacher Appreciation Week serves as a focal point for expressing gratitude, but the commitment to supporting our educators should extend far beyond this designated time. By understanding the importance of their role, actively participating in expressing our appreciation, and fostering a collaborative relationship between parents, teachers, and students, we can create a thriving educational environment where both teachers and students flourish. Let's make a collective commitment to ensuring our teachers feel valued, respected, and supported—not just during Teacher Appreciation Week, but throughout the year.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: Teaching with Heart Sam M. Intrator, Megan Scribner, 2014-05-19 Each and every day teachers show up in their classrooms with a relentless sense of optimism. Despite the complicated challenges of schools, they come to and remain in the profession inspired by a conviction that through education they can move individuals and society to a more promising future. In Teaching with Heart: Poetry that Speaks to the Courage to Teach a diverse group of ninety teachers describe the complex of emotions and experiences of the teaching life – joy, outrage, heartbreak, hope, commitment and dedication. Each heartfelt commentary is paired with a cherished poem selected by the teacher. The contributors represent a broad array of educators: K-12 teachers, principals, superintendents, college professors, as well as many non-traditional teachers. They range from first year teachers to mid-career veterans to those who have retired after decades in the classroom. They come from inner-city, suburban, charter and private schools. The teachers identified an eclectic collection of poems and poets from Emily Dickinson, to Richard Wright, to Mary Oliver to the rapper Tupac Shakur. It is a book by teachers and for all who teach. The book also includes a poignant Foreword by Parker J. Palmer (The Courage to Teach), a stirring Introduction by Taylor Mali (What Teachers Make), and a moving Afterword by Sarah Brown Wessling (Teaching Channel). Where Teaching with Fire honored and celebrated the work of teachers; Teaching with Heart salutes the tenacious and relentless optimism of teachers and their belief that despite the many challenges and obstacles of the teaching life, much is possible.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: No More Teaching a Letter a Week Rebecca McKay, William H. Teale, 2015 Letter-a-week may be a ubiquitous approach to teaching alphabet knowledge, but that doesn't mean it's an effective one. In No More Teaching a Letter a Week, early literacy researcher Dr. William Teale helps us understand that alphabet knowledge is more than letter recognition, and identifies research-based principles of effective alphabet instruction, which constitutes the foundation for phonics teaching and learning. Literacy coach Rebecca McKay shows us how to bring those principles to life through purposeful practices that invite children to create an identity through print. Children can and should do more than glue beans into the shape of a B; they need to learn how letters create words that carry meaning, so that they can, and do, use print to expand their understanding of the world and themselves.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: A Letter to My Teacher Deborah Hopkinson, 2025-04-15 This funny, touching picture book celebrates the difference a good teacher can make. Written as a thank-you note to a special teacher from the student who never forgot her, this moving story makes a great classroom read-aloud, and a perfect back-to-school gift for students and teachers! Dear Teacher, Whenever I had something to tell you, I tugged on your shirt and whispered in your ear. This time I'm writing a letter. So begins this heartfelt picture book about a girl who prefers running and jumping to listening and learning—and the teacher who gently inspires her. From stomping through creeks on a field trip to pretending to choke when called upon to read aloud, this book's young heroine would be a challenge to any teacher. But this teacher isn't just any teacher. By listening carefully and knowing just the right thing to say, she quickly learns that the girl's unruly behavior is due to her struggles with reading. And at the very end, we learn what this former student is now: a teacher herself. From award winning author Deborah Hopkinson and acclaimed illustrator Nancy Carpenter, this picture book is made to be treasured by both those who teach and those who learn.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: Confident Parents, Confident Kids Jennifer S. Miller, 2019-11-05 Confident Parents, Confident Kids lays out an approach for helping parents—and the kids they love—hone their emotional intelligence so that they can make wise choices, connect and communicate well with others (even when patience is thin), and become socially conscious and confident human beings. How do we raise a happy, confident kid? And how can we be confident that our parenting is preparing our child for success? Our confidence develops from understanding and having a mastery over our emotions (aka emotional intelligence)—and helping our children do the same. Like learning to play a musical instrument, we can fine-tune our ability to skillfully react to those crazy, wonderful, big feelings that naturally arise from our child's constant growth and changes, moving from chaos to harmony. We want our children to trust that they can conquer any challenge with hard work and persistence; that they can love boundlessly; that they will find their unique sense of purpose; and they will act wisely in a complex world. This book shows you how. With author and educator Jennifer Miller as your supportive guide, you'll learn: the lies we've been told about emotions, how they shape our choices, and how we can reshape our parenting decisions in better alignment with our deepest values. how to identify the temperaments your child was born with so you can support those tendencies rather than fight them. how to align your biggest hopes and dreams for your kids with specific skills that can be practiced, along with new research to support those powerful connections. about each age and stage your child goes through and the range of learning opportunities available. how to identify and manage those big emotions (that only the parenting process can bring out in us!) and how to model emotional intelligence for your children. how to deal with the emotions and influences of your choir—the many outside individuals and communities who directly impact your child’s life, including school, the digital world, extended family, neighbors, and friends. Raising confident, centered, happy kids—while feeling the same way about yourself—is possible with Confident Parents, Confident Kids.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: Think Write Book Ines Millin Mevs, 2008-01 The Think Write Book incorporates sentence combining with features of various academic content areas, non-fiction, and jumping off points for further and more in-depth discussion and collaboration in the ELL classroom community. Students will be able to develop and strengthen their writing skills, specifically composing, revising, editing, and critical thinking. By mastering these skills, students will improve their syntax and fluency, and they will also acquire a stronger writer's vocabulary that will aid them in enhancing their overall written communication skills, academic writing assignments, and demand writing tasks found in various state-mandated standardized tests. Incorporating sentence combining with classroom activities, such as peer-review/peer-assessment, and writing workshops, will also promote very powerful data for teachers who are engaging in action research. Using the sentence combining activities in this book, along with writers' workshop activities, can provide teachers of English Language Learners and struggling writers with a means to conduct whole-group, small-group, and differentiated instruction as students continue their development of vocabulary and language necessary for academic success. Such activities will have the desirable effect of increasing ELL students' understanding and maturity in written expression, as well as their increased metalinguistic awareness and the use of rubrics, particularly those that target the conventions of writing.

Based on 30 years of research and fieldwork, the fourth edition of the bestseller School, Family, and Community Partnerships: Your Handbook for Action, presents tools and guidelines to help develop more effective and more equitable programs of family and community engagement. Written by a team of well-known experts, it provides a theory and framework of six types of involvement for action; up-to-date research on school, family, and community collaboration; and new materials for professional development and on-going technical assistance. Readers also will find: Examples of best practices on the six types of involvement from preschools, and elementary, middle, and high schools Checklists, templates, and evaluations to plan goal-linked partnership programs and assess progress CD-ROM with slides and notes for two presentations: A new awareness session to orient colleagues on the major components of a research-based partnership program, and a full One-Day Team Training Workshop to prepare school teams to develop their partnership programs. As a foundational text, this handbook demonstrates a proven approach to implement and sustain inclusive, goal-linked programs of partnership. It shows how a good partnership program is an essential component of good school organization and school improvement for student success. This book will help every district and all schools strengthen and continually improve their programs of family and community engagement.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: Not Quite Burned Out But Crispy Around the Edges Sharon Mills Draper, 2001 This collection of inspirational stories and essays is designed to remind teachers why they decided to teach in the first place, and to encourage them to stay in often difficult situations where they are needed.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: The Knowledge Gap Natalie Wexler, 2020-08-04 The untold story of the root cause of America's education crisis--and the seemingly endless cycle of multigenerational poverty. It was only after years within the education reform movement that Natalie Wexler stumbled across a hidden explanation for our country's frustrating lack of progress when it comes to providing every child with a quality education. The problem wasn't one of the usual scapegoats: lazy teachers, shoddy facilities, lack of accountability. It was something no one was talking about: the elementary school curriculum's intense focus on decontextualized reading comprehension skills at the expense of actual knowledge. In the tradition of Dale Russakoff's The Prize and Dana Goldstein's The Teacher Wars, Wexler brings together history, research, and compelling characters to pull back the curtain on this fundamental flaw in our education system--one that fellow reformers, journalists, and policymakers have long overlooked, and of which the general public, including many parents, remains unaware. But The Knowledge Gap isn't just a story of what schools have gotten so wrong--it also follows innovative educators who are in the process of shedding their deeply ingrained habits, and describes the rewards that have come along: students who are not only excited to learn but are also acquiring the knowledge and vocabulary that will enable them to succeed. If we truly want to fix our education system and unlock the potential of our neediest children, we have no choice but to pay attention.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: When God Says "Go" Elizabeth Laing Thompson, 2018-05-01 Despite the serious topic of this book, it is a delight to read. Thompson tackles the natural desire to resist God's calling with such energy that the book is hard to put down. -Elizabeth Wisz, Christian Market Reading like a moving sermon, Thompson's book of biblical lessons will appeal to Christians looking for spiritual encouragement. -Publisher's Weekly Go. One small word. . .so much power. When God says, "Go," we face one of life's greatest decisions. When God says, "Go," we must face our fears. . .our excuses. . .and our selves. When God says, "Go," it's time to answer His call wherever it leads. When God says, "Go, what will you do? Author Elizabeth Laing Thompson invites you to walk alongside people of the Bible who were called by God to fulfill His purposes. . .people like Moses, Esther, Abigail, Jeremiah, Mary, and others. These Bible heroes responded much like we do--with a jumbled-up inner storm of excitement and fear, insecurity and hope. Their stories and struggles will provide a roadmap for your own story, helping you face your very own doubts, regrets, and worries. When God calls, it's time to go. Maybe somewhere new, someplace you've never been. Maybe it's time to go forward after being stuck with one foot in the past. Maybe it's time to go deeper--in Bible study or relationships. Time to go higher--in prayer or dreams. Time to go and give--to use talents and opportunities God has given you. Or maybe it's time to go and grow, right where you are. . .to dig into the Word, dive into your heart, and become the woman God is calling you to be. Ready or not, God is calling us all to go somewhere new in our walk with Him. So what are we waiting for? Let's answer His call. Let's get started!

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: When God Says "Wait" Elizabeth Laing Thompson, 2017-03-01 A job, a true love, a baby, a cure. . . We're all waiting for something from God. And the place between His answers can feel like a wasteland where dreams--and faith--go to die. When we're waiting, we wonder, "Why?", "Why me?", and "How long?" But the truth? . . . When God says, "Wait," He doesn't tell us for how long. When God says, "Wait," we face one of life's greatest tests. When God says, "Wait," we have decisions to make. When God says, "Wait," we can control only two things: how we wait, and who we become along the way. Author Elizabeth Laing Thompson invites you to walk alongside people of the Bible who had to wait on God. . .imperfect heroes like David, Miriam, Naomi, Sarah, Joseph, and others. Their stories will provide a roadmap for your own story, helping you navigate the painful, lonely territory of waiting, coming out on the other side with your faith, relationships, and sense of humor intact. They might even help you learn to enjoy the ride. This book is about the journey of waiting, the space between answers, and the people we become while we live there.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: All the Feels for Teens Elizabeth Laing Thompson, 2021-10-05 "Part workbook, part self-help guide, part Bible study, this handbook is geared toward those who experience big feelings and could use some support navigating the challenges that come with this territory. . . . Overwhelmed teens can find validation in this faith-based guide." —Kirkus Reviews No one knows about having all the feels quite like teenage girls—but few girls know what to do with all those feelings. They can flit from giddy to anxious to insecure to in love—oops, wait, just kidding, out of love—to chill to stressed to ecstatic to despairing to rebellious to penitent to cynical to naïve to independent to clingy to selfish to selfless, all with a heaping side order of angst and adorkability, all in a span of hours . . . sometimes minutes. In other words: all the feels all the time. Christian teens need Bible-based help to show them that it's okay to feel deeply (after all, God himself is the Author of all feelings), but each of us must learn to train our emotions in the ways of Christ. As they learn how to deal with all the feels, girls need scriptural foundations, practical strategies, and the assurance that they are not weird—and never alone. Includes: Quizzes and interactive charts Journal questions Prayer prompts Scripture lists for different needs Discussion starters for mothers and daughters or mentors and mentees looking to learn together All the Feels for Teens pairs great with All the Feels, a book designed for adult women.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: It's OK to Go Up the Slide Heather Shumaker, 2016-03-08 When it comes to parenting, sometimes you have to trust your gut. With her first book, It's OK Not to Share, Heather Shumaker overturned all the conventional rules of parenting with her "renegade rules" for raising competent and compassionate kids. In It's Ok To Go Up the Slide, Shumaker takes on new hot-button issues with renegade rules such as: - Recess Is A Right - It's Ok Not To Kiss Grandma - Ban Homework in Elementary School - Safety Second - Don't Force Participation Shumaker also offers broader guidance on how parents can control their own fears and move from an overscheduled life to one of more free play. Parenting can too often be reduced to shuttling kids between enrichment classes, but Shumaker challenges parents to reevaluate how they're spending their precious family time. This book helps parents help their kids develop important life skills in an age-appropriate way. Most important, parents must model these skills, whether it's technology use, confronting conflict, or coping emotionally with setbacks. Sometimes being a good parent means breaking all the rules.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: Our Own Country Jodi Daynard, 2016 A love affair tests a new nation's revolutionary ideals. In 1770s Boston, a prosperous merchant's daughter, Eliza Boylston, lives a charmed life--until war breaches the walls of the family estate and forces her to live in a world in which wealth can no longer protect her. As the chaos of the Revolutionary War tears her family apart, Eliza finds herself drawn to her uncle's slave, John Watkins. Their love leads to her exile in Braintree, Massachusetts, home to radicals John and Abigail Adams and Eliza's midwife sister-in-law, Lizzie Boylston. But even as the uprising takes hold, Eliza can't help but wonder whether a rebel victory will grant her and John the most basic of American rights.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: Finding Mrs. Warnecke Cindi Rigsbee, 2010-03-15 Finding Mrs. Warnecke tells the inspiring story of Cindi Rigsbee, a three-time Teacher of the Year, and Barbara Warnecke, the first-grade teacher who had a profound and lasting impact on Cindi's life. Cindi, an insecure child who craved positive attention, started her first-grade year with a teacher who was emotionally abusive and played favorites in the classroom. Two months into the school year, her principal came into the classroom and announced that half the students were being moved to another classroom--a dank, windowless basement room, with a young and inexperienced teacher. This change turned out to be the best thing that ever happened to Cindi. Her new teacher, Mrs. Warnecke, made learning come alive for her students. She went overboard caring for each child, made her classroom magical, and encouraged students to pursue their dreams. Although Cindi was reluctant to explore her creativity as a student, Mrs. Warnecke encouraged her to read and write poetry, which became a lifelong passion. The two kept in touch for several years but lost track of each other when Mrs. Warnecke moved out of state. Cindi spent many years trying to reconnect so she could thank Mrs. Warnecke for making such a difference in her life, but to no avail. Eventually Cindi became a teacher herself, and thirty years later she has taught more than 2,000 children and been named Teacher of the Year for her home state. She later came to realize that all those years she wasn't really trying to track down Barbara Warnecke, but rather, she was trying to find Mrs. Warnecke within herself. In Fall 2008 Cindi and Barbara were reunited on Good Morning America; the show's producers had tracked Barbara down and brought both women on-set for a tearful reunion. Barbara was floored at this attention--she had no idea she could have made such an impact on a former student's life. As Cindi travels around talking with new and veteran educators, she is always approached by audience members who are moved to tears and want to share the story of the Mrs. Warnecke in their own lives. Finding Mrs. Warnecke not only tells the story of this teacher who made a lifelong impact on her students, it illustrates the importance of the teacher/student relationship in the classroom, and offers principles for other teachers to follow to make a positive impact in their own classrooms.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: *Letters to a Teacher Sam Pickering, 2007-12-01 Inspirational reflections on the art of teaching from the acclaimed essayist and teacher who inspired Dead Poets Society. Sam Pickering has been teaching for more than forty years. As a young English teacher at Montgomery Bell Academy in Tennessee, his musings on literature and his maverick pedagogy touched a student named Tommy Schulman, who later wrote the screenplay for Dead Poets Society. Pickering went on to teach at Dartmouth and the University of Connecticut, where he has been for twenty-five years. His acclaimed essays have established him as a nimble thinker with a unique way of enlightening us through the quotidian. Letters to a Teacher is a welcome reminder that teaching is a joy and an art. In ten letters addressed to teachers of all types, Pickering shares compelling, funny, always illuminating anecdotes from a lifetime in the classrooms of schools and universities. His observations touch on topics such as competition, curiosity, enthusiasm, and truth, and are leavened throughout with stories—whether from the family breakfast table, his revelatory nature walks, or his time teaching in Australia and Syria. More than a how-to guide, Letters to a Teacher is an invitation into the hearts and minds of an extraordinary educator and his students, and an irresistible call to reflection for the teacher who knows he or she must be compassionate, optimistic, respectful, firm, and above all, dynamic. “Perhaps the most poetic—even elegiac writing about education published in the past year.” —Library Journal letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: *In Awe John O'Leary, 2020-05-05 NATIONAL BESTSELLER • The #1 bestselling author of On Fire shows us how to recapture and harness our childlike sense of wonder in order to become more engaged, successful, and fulfilled. “Engaging . . . O’Leary encourages us to see the world through a child’s eyes.”—Mitch Albom, author of Tuesdays with Morrie There once was a time when we joyfully raised our hands to answer questions, connected easily with others, believed that anything was possible, and fearlessly jumped into new experiences. A time when we viewed each day not as something to endure, but as a marvelous gift to explore and savor—when we danced through our lives in awe of the ordinary moments and eager for the promise of tomorrow. Unfortunately, that's far from our experience today. Instead, we feel disconnected and jaded. Social media reminds us that we don't measure up, and the mainstream media barrages us with constant negativity. Many of us find ourselves caught in a life of dogged responsibility and mind-numbing repetition. The daily struggle to earn a living has caused us to lose the sense of wonder with which we once greeted every day. In his new book, bestselling author John O'Leary invites us to consider that it is possible to once again navigate the world as a child does. Identifying five senses children innately possess and that we've lost touch with as we age, O'Leary shares emotional, humorous, and inspirational stories intertwined with fascinating new research showing how each of us can reclaim our childlike joy, and why doing so will change how we interact with the world. In Awe reveals how we can regain that ability to see fresh insights, reach for new solutions, and live our best lives.

letter to parents about teacher appreciation week: *Teach Like Nobody's Watching Mark Enser, 2019-10 Challenges teachers to embrace their professional agency in order to ensure that their pupils get the excellent education they deserve. At a time when schools are calling out for more autonomy and trust Mark Enser poses teachers the pivotal question, How would you teach if nobody was watching? and empowers them with the tools and confidence to do just that. Mark argues that a quality education is rooted in simplicity. In this book he methodically strips away the layers of contradictory pedagogical advice that educators have received over the years and lends weight to the three key pillars that underpin effective, efficient teaching: the lesson, the curriculum and the school's support structure. Teach Like Nobody's Watching explores these three core elements in detail, and presents teachers with a range of practical strategies to help them cultivate a culture of excellent learning in their schools and classrooms.
